AMUSEMENTS.

JEWELL KELLEY STOCK CO.

—Much interest is being manifested in the appearance at the opera house all next week of the popular favorites, the Jewell Kelley Stock Co. The company is a decided favorite in this city, having made a most favorable impression here last season.

Mr. Kelley and his company have been in the city for several weeks rehearsing. The company is large and expensive and theatre-goers are anticipating a week of pure wholesome amusement.

Monday night "The Gates of Justice" will be put on. The play is a new one and gives every member of the company an opportunity to excell. Ladies will be admitted free on Monday night upon the usual conditions. A big matinee will be given Saturday afternoon when "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will be the play for the ladies and children.

Try Us; We Can Supply You.

Fancy Free Stone peaches, apples, oranges, bananas, water melons on ice, cantaloupes, pine apples—everything in the fruit line. Also vegetables of all kinds.

27-2t WM. SAUER.

Wheat! Wheat!

We want to buy your wheat at highest market price. You can save time if you sell to us in unloading. We unload 2,000 bushels per hour. If you do not care to sell now, we will store your wheat in our steel tanks and no insurance will be necessary. We buy at all stations in Bourbon and adjoining counties.

PARIS MILLING CO.

The "Red Fox" Will Run.

From information given out at Lexington it is now practically settled that Charles J. Bronston, former State Senator from Fayette county, will re-enter the political arena, and that he will shortly announce his candidacy for Attorney General.

This announcement will likely cause a shudder in the ranks of the Beckham machine and its followers, as it is known that the "Red Fox" of Kentucky politics, as Bronston is known throughout the State, is a warm supporter of Senator McCreary and N. B. Hays, and if he consents to become a candidate he will advocate the election of both these men while stumping the State in his own interest.

Blue Grass Seed Wanted.

We are in the market for bluegrass seed from the stripper; also for August delivery.

MATRIMONIAL.

—Mr. J. T. Frederick, of this city, and Miss Annie Small, of near Millersburg, were married in County Clerk Paton's office Wednesday, Judge Denis Dundon officiating.

—Mr. Archie Ockerman, a prosperous farmer, and Miss Katie Doyle, an attractive young woman, both of Nicholas county, were married in the National Hotel Parlors at Mt. Sterling Wednesday. Rev. H. G. Turner performed the ceremony.

—Mr. Lynn Adams and Miss Sadie M. Hardin were united in marriage at the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. Geo. W. Clarke, in this city, Wednesday. The bride is the lovely daughter of Judge W. S. Hardin, of Cynthia, and the groom is a popular young farmer, of near Winchester.

Directors Held Responsible.

James C. Rogers, appointed by the Fayette Circuit Court some time ago, as receiver of the Southern Mutual Investment Company, will endeavor to hold the Directors of the old Southern Mutual Investment Company responsible for the liabilities of the other company, which have been fixed at about $1,000,000.

Winchester Loses Traction Line.

By the City Council of Winchester wanting the earth for a franchise for the Central Kentucky Traction Company, the company refuses to run a line to that city.

Fire Last Night.

The Fire Department was called out last night at 11 o'clock to extinguish a fire in John Cain's stable. The building was too far gone for the department to do any good and burned to the ground in short order.

McCreary Given Ovation.

Senator James B. McCreary was given an enthusiastic reception at the Elks Fair at Georgetown yesterday, in marked contrast with the perfunctory welcome and formal courtesies shown Governor Beckham on the occasion of his visit on Tuesday.

McCreary arrived there yesterday morning and was called upon at the Wellington Hotel by several hundred political supporters and citizens generally. Between 2,500 and 3,000 people assembled at the Fair Grounds to listen to Senator McCreary, and the greeting he received was spontaneous and enthusiastic in the extreme. Judge J. F. Askew made the introductory speech.

A Diversity of Climate.

In their parade at Denver, the Elks were pelted alternately with flowers and snowballs, the snow being brought from the mountains to show the visitors the diversity of the Colorado climate. But few localities could furnish such varied entertainment.

Prof. Lippard wants 25 bright young men and women to enter the Paris Business College the first of September to prepare for good positions. Prof. Lippard has recently placed eight graduates with one firm, which has applied for ten more for this month and fifteen for August. All interested should write Prof. Lippard, Paris, Ky. 24-2t

Another Candidate for Governor.

Another candidate for Governor looms up on the political horizon. Hon. Robert B. Franklin, of Frankfort, Commonwealth's Attorney for this District, tells his friends that he will announce his candidacy in the next few days and immediately start upon a stumping tour of the State.

Valuable Property.

E. H. Gorey, as agent for the Reynolds heirs, will sell on the premises in Paris, on Wednesday, August 1st, seven pieces of property. It is all good property and will pay a splendid percent on the investment. See large advertisement in this issue.

Bryan Given Private Audience By King Edward.

W. J. Bryan, who was introduced by Ambassador Reid, was received in private audience by King Edward at Buckingham Palace yesterday. The visit was paid at the King's special request, his majesty having notified Mr. Reid that he desired to meet Mr. Bryan. The interview was quite informal and was marked by the pleasing cordiality which the King is accustomed to show Americans in whom he is interested. Only the King, Mr. Reid and Mr. Bryan were present. They discussed the subject of peace and interparliamentary union, with the objects of which the King voiced himself as favorably in accord.

MILLERSBURG ITEMS.

—Mr. Stanley Layson is no better.
—Mrs. Elizabeth Leer is able to be up.

—Mr. R. M. Caldwell is still improving nicely.

—Miss Leona Letton has returned from a visit to Mt. Sterling.

—Miss Bessie Purnell was the guest of Mrs. Lyttleton Purnell Saturday.

—Messrs. Arris and Will Vimont have gone to Richmond, Va., for a visit.

—Miss Martha Smith is spending a few days with Mrs. Bruce Miller, at Paris.

—Miss Alma Hurst, of Cynthia, is the guest of her uncle, Mr. Fielding Hurst.

—Misses Florence and Lillian Chanslor are visiting relatives in Mason county.

—Mr. George Zelle, special deputy, will be at I. O. O. F. lodge Friday, July 27th.

—Miss Ida Dodson remains about the same. She has a trained nurse with her now.

—Miss Elizabeth Wall Allen left Monday to spend the week at Winchester with relatives.

—Mrs. Fannie Tablott was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Sallie Best, from Saturday till Monday.

—Miss Louise Boulden has returned from a visit to friends in Paris, Cynthia and Lexington.

—Mrs. John Ingels and children have gone to Eminence to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Batterton.

—Miss Emma Bedford has returned from a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Frank Armstrong, of Maysville.

—Prof. and Mrs. McFarland, parents of Mrs. Layson Tarr, left for their home in Kansas, Wednesday.

—Miss Louise Warford left Tuesday for several weeks of canvassing for Campbell-Hagerman College, Lexington.

—The excursion to the Cincinnati Zoo by the Sunday Schools was quite a success, every ticket being sold. Two cars left here full.

—Mrs. Joe Mock entertained a few of her friends with a yard party, Wednesday afternoon. The game of quarts was played and refreshments were served.

—Mrs. Frankie Garland met with a very painful accident in Maysville. She was on her way to the L. & N. depot and in stepping off the street car fell heavily to the ground and badly sprained her ankle. She will probably not be able to walk for several months. She is with her mother now.

—Mr. Garrett Judy was married last week to Miss Vida Clare Knight, a daughter of one of Florida's oldest and wealthiest citizens. They left for a bridal trip to Denver, Col., and will be at home to their friends in Tampa, Fla., September 1st. Mr. Judy has a position with the Tampa Drug Company.

The People Demand Fair Play.

Senator McCreary and Governor Beckham are agreed on at least one essential point. Both want a fair and honest primary election. Judge McQuown, Chairman of the State Democratic Committee, gives them his assurance that so far as it may be in his power the primary shall be conducted fairly. Although the the latter gentleman has been one of the pets of the present administration, we do not doubt that he will do all in his power to further this end, but, at the same time, he is not the whole committee. Now, let a fair and an honest election be held, the country press throughout the State should warn all of them in time and demand that the coming primary should be a fair one. None other will satisfy the great common people of this State. There is a growing public sentiment all over Kentucky and in other States, of greater honesty in politics. If fraud in Democratic primaries is continued, you are going to see the people rise in their might on regular election days and retire these political grafters for life. We do not want to see anything like this happen in Kentucky, so we advise the Frankfort machine to go slow, for the eyes of the people are upon them and only waiting for developments in regard to the arrangements for the State primary.

Senator McCreary's Announcement.

In another column will be found the announcement of Hon. James B. McCreary for re-election to the United States Senate at the Democratic State primary in November. Let every Democrat in Bourbon not only read this announcement, but go to the polls in November and vote for him. When a member of the House of Representatives he originated and put through many of the most important bills ever passed by that body. He was recognized by that body as a man of ability and a born leader of men. As a Senator he is exactly what he was as a Representative—always faithful, always active. The Democratic party is in a hopeless minority in the chamber, but such a man as McCreary is invaluable to Kentucky for the ceaseless industry he brings to bear in the discharge of his duties. But, above all, his great advantage is his experience at Washington—his urbanity, his tenacity and his skill in accomplishing results.

The public acts, of which James B. McCreary was the author, are parts of the history and the policy of the nation, and evidence that fact that he is a political Statesman of a high order of ability. His defeat by Gov. Beckham would be a calamity to this grand old commonwealth.

Big Debt For the Public to Pay.

If we assume that a family consists on the average of five persons, it will cost every family in the United States $55.10 to pay the debts contracted by the last session of Congress. Congress appropriated a sum equal to $11.02 per capita on the 80,000,000 people in this country. It was not a property tax, but an indirect, insidious, dishonest tariff and internal revenue tax, equivalent in its operation and effect to a poll of about $33 on every adult in the country.

Might Be Applicable to Paris.

The following story is going the rounds; and it might be just as applicable to Paris as the other fellow:

"At a revival meeting in Ashland a butcher arose and said that he was the wickedest man in town, and had given his customers short weight for years. 'I'd go to hell if I should die to-night,' he continued. Immediately an old Deacon, who was in the grocery business, started the hymn, 'If you get there before I do, tell them that I'm coming too,' and the grocer wondered why everybody laughed."

Defective plumbing permits the entrance into the house of sewer gas bearing germs or contagious disease to which the human system readily succumbs. Sewer gas is not necessarily generated in the sewer, but is frequently created in the plumbing system within the home and enters the apartments through defective fixtures. Our Washington Letter.

BY EARL W. MAYO.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—One of the strangest features of the last session of Congress was the troubled slumber of the ship subsidy bill, which, as the more modern example of Private John Allen's perennial bill for a public building at Tupelo, Miss., has been regularly introduced, disturbed and debated, and finally shelved for lo, these many years. The question of a subsidized merchant marine is a vexed one,
which has not been classified by the statistics of vessel construction just issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor. From these it seems that the tonnage of rigged vessels constructed during the past year was nearly 550,000—a total equal to nearly two dozen of the largest battleships in the world. The surprising part of it all is that practically the whole of this amount was covered by construction on the Great Lakes, which while it does not affect the ship subsidy situation,
does show in a startling manner the demand which the country is making for a chance to take advantage of cheap water transportation. In Germany, for example, the canals and rivers carry a great part of the freight, and while this country is admirably equipped in the rough of Nature for water transportation, it is only of late that the question has been brought up in its true light by the National Rivers and Harbors Congress—an organization which is striving to show the futility of paying rail rates when a demand for the improvement of our waterways
through increased Federal appropriations would enable the shipper to move his goods at one-sixth of the present rates. With a six-foot channel in the Mississippi, says Representative Haugen of Iowa, wheat can be shipped the whole length of the river for two cents a hundredweight. Facts like these indicate that the future cry for federal appropriations in connection with water transportation is to be not for subsidized fleets but for inland improvements.

The time for singing is come, and the wail of the government clerk is heard in the land. Because he gets a half holiday on Saturday during the summer, while naturally drawing full pay, it is now ruled that he is to be docked for twice the amount of time he loses. Naturally he is sore, and the government seems to have put its foot into trouble again. Indeed, the fact—often adduced against federal and municipal ownership—that a government is a less successful bargainer than an individual or corporation, finds ample illustration here in Washington.
The national government supplies half of the business of the city, and in many classes of supplies it buys far more than all the city population combined.
It is frequently pointed out, in explanation of the oft-repeated statement that Washington is one of the most expensive cities in the country in which to live, that this is due to the high level of prices maintained by the presence of the federal government

as a large purchaser. Even at that,
the private citizen fares better than the public department, for it is a well-known fact that Washington dealers maintain a double scale of prices—one for individual customers and another at a considerably higher level where Uncle Sam foots his bills. The only thing, apparently, which the government purchases more cheaply than the ordinary business man is personal service.
It is well understood that those who work for the government receive less than they could earn from private employers that every Congressman occupies a large part of his time in advising young men and women among his constituents not to enter the federal service, as, for instance, did John Wesley Gaines last winter.

To those who find their hobby in the collection of odd examples of inventive genius, the cleaning out of the Patent Office next week will afford another chance for acquiring further specimens.
Guardian Griggs, who for years has watched over the accumulating models,
in which can be traced the advance of any line of inventive progress, it is said, for Uncle Sam, having little sentiment for room-occupying relics, has given out that all models, except those few reserved by a committee appointed for that purpose, must be disposed of by sale, gift or otherwise. Many are the curiosities new and old which will be raked up and passed on, while Mr.
Griggs stands by with more than fatherly care and solicitude. There are 157,- 000 models on hand at present, all arranged in chronological, or logical order, and altogether they form one of the most interesting exhibits in the world. The first sewing machine—a queer looking contraption invented in 1851, is there, as are models of the first locomotive, the first cotton gin,
and things too numerous to mention.
There is a whole department devoted to the inventions of women, one of the most curious being a bustle made like a chair, so that the wearer might always have a seat with her when shopping. It is a ponderous affair, but Mr.
Griggs, evidently a bit of a misan-thrope, says women have worn worse than that. There is also a pocket sewing machine invented by a woman to be used when conversation flagged. It never flagged, so the machine had no sale. Of course the most cherished models will be retained, but among those which will go there will be many curiosities.

There is grief in the hearts of the Washington postmen, for it looks as if there was to be no diminution of their labors during the summer. While Congress is in session the city reaches the apex of its activities with as many as four mail deliveries each day. It has been the custom in the past, however,
after Congress has adjourned and left Washington to somnolence and heat, to reduce the deliveries to three, thus giving each postman a daily vacation of two hours. But this year it looks as if they would have to continue their arduous and heroic labor unabated and without the refreshing and welcome
daily siesta, for the law says that carriers must work eight hours a day. As the omission of deliveries would shorten
this time, it is pointed out that such a step would be illegal. Therefore, the semblance of activity is likely to continue in Washington through the summer.

An odd effect produced on the sale of stamps by the season of the year has been brought to light at the postoffice.
It has been discovered that during the summer months the sale of one cent stamps is increased enormously, and at last the reason has been found. It seems that the increased sales of the one cent stamps are due to the fondness which women and children, absent on a vacation in the mountains or at the seashore, have for sending home souvenir postal cards, which require only one cent postage. The odd part of the whole thing is that such souvenir cards can be bought in any of the large cities more cheaply than at summer resorts.

SPECTACLE LENSES.

How the Glasses Are Ground, Polished and Finished.

In the manufacture of spectacle lenses the bit of glass to be formed into a lens is fastened by means of pitch to a small block of hard rubber,
so that it may be held. It is ground by being pressed against a rapidly revolving cast iron disk on a vertical spindle and with curvature equal and opposite to that desired in the lens.

This is the "rough tool" and is kept moistened with emery and water. Several grades of emery are used in succession, changing from coarse to fine
as the grinding proceeds.

The glass is then transferred to the "fine tool," made of brass, and compared from time to time to a standard curve in order to insure accuracy. In this second grinding the abrading material is rough.

Finally, the lens is polished by being pressed against a piece of cloth powdered with rouge and fastened to the rotating tool. The glass is now loosened from its block, turned over and the reverse side of the lens ground.
When this has been accomplished the lens is placed on a leather cushion and held firmly in position by a rubber tipped arm while a diamond glass cutter passing round an oval guide traces a similar oval on the glass below. The superfluous glass is removed by steel pinchers and the rough edges are ground smooth on Scotch wheels.—

Man and His Money.

Almost every woman has her basis for the valuation of a man. One girl who recently broke off an engagement
to be married certainly has hers.

"I couldn't stand him," she said, "because he carried his money in a fish scale purse. That seemed to me the limit. To my mind there is only one really manly way for a man to carry money, and that is to throw it around loose in his trousers pockets, so that when he wants a nickel he has to dig up change by the handful to get it.
For bills, of course, I can stand one of those flat leather pocketbooks. They have a businesslike aspect and do not detract from a man's dignity. But to see a big strapping fellow who has the appearance of a real live man draw a little purse from his pocket and fish around for a dime is too much for me."
—New York Sun.

Rome's Great Fire.

In A. D. 64 ten of the fourteen municipal districts of Rome were destroyed by a conflagration instigated, it is said, by the Emperor Nero. The number of lives lost is known to amount up into the hundreds, but the value of the property destroyed cannot be estimated. By the emperor's command thousands of Romans rendered homeless and destitute were employed in removing the debris and rebuilding the burned city. Nero, to divert the odium of the crime from himself, charged it upon the Christians, and thus began one of the greatest persecutions in the history of the early Christian church.

Well Upholstered Furniture.

When Paradise Corner organized its woman's club it was determined that everything should be done in the most businesslike way. "My husband makes so much fun of women's meetings,"
said one of the youngest members.
"He says women never remember to say 'Mrs. President' or speak of 'the chair' or 'the secretary'—that is, he says they are liable to forget at any time and mention names instead, but I told him we shouldn't, any of us."

"Why, as I told him, we are so particular that when we had that extra meeting at Miss Lowden's, and it was so hot and Miss Ransom looked about baked in her new coat, Miss Lowden feels so strongly that we mustn't ever run to careless ways of speech that she said, 'Wouldn't it be wiser for the chair to remove its coat, though it is so awfully becoming to it?' And it really did sound a little queer till you thought it over."—Youth's Companion.

The Peril of It.

A lady at whose house Leigh Hunt was dining solicitously said to him at dessert:

"Don't you ever venture on an orange?"

"I should be delighted to do so, my dear madam," the poet replied, "but I'm so afraid I should tumble off."

STRANGE ADVICE!

Dr. G. G. Green gives alert personal attention to his great humanitarian contract.

In our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them if they did not receive any special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent
bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds,
bronchial or lung troubles—and that,
even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.

William Jennings Bryan may never be President of the United States, but he will not have lived in vain, since he says and does so many good things.
Discussing the question of reduction of the great armies of the old countries
he says: "It gave me great pleasure to observe the hearty response given to every sentiment for peace and the reduction of armaments. England is setting an example which other nations ought to follow. I am a firm believer in arbitration and in everything that makes for the substitution of reason for force. I admit it is hard to get one nation to do what the surrounding nations refuse to do, but every effort ought to be made in every country to cultivate public opinion to support the largest reductions of the military establishments that the cupidities permit."
"I am glad the relations of England and America are harmonious, but I do not think we should single out any one nation with which to cultivate specially friendly relations."

W. H. HARRIS, Agent,
D. S. JORDAN, T. A.Announcement of Senator James B. McCreary.

To the Democrats of Kentucky:—I have in various newspaper interviews declared my candidacy for United States Senator, and I now, over my own signature, submit to you my candidacy for the nomination as United States Senator according to the plan announced by the Democratic Executive Committee of Kentucky.

For the honor conferred upon me in 1902 when I was elected United States Senator I am sincerely grateful. I have tried to be faithful and efficient, and the manner in which I have discharged my official duties I leave to the unprejudiced judgment of the people of Kentucky.

I have always been in favor of primary elections fairly and legally held, and I have always been opposed to bossism or machine rule. When I was first a candidate for United States Senator the other candidates and myself agreed to a primary election to be held two months before the election of United States Senator by the General Assembly, but the State Democratic Committee did not deem it for the best interests of the Democratic party, and refused to order a primary election.

The proposed primary election is ordered to be held many months earlier than any primary election to nominate either State officers or United States Senator was ever held in Kentucky, or in any other State. For many years primaries or conventions in our State to nominate candidates for State offices have been held in May or June of the year in which the candidates nominated were to be voted for at the November election, and it has been heretofore believed that said primaries should not occur when Presidential or Congressional elections are held, so that national and State issues would be separated.

The primary election ordered to be held on the 6th of next November will occur on the regular election day when Representatives in Congress will be elected, and this primary election was called eighteen months before the election of a United States Senator by the General Assembly, and two years and eight months before the Senator elected can take his seat in the United States Senate, and candidates for State offices will be nominated twelve months before they can be elected, and the call for a primary to nominate them so early is in violation of the rule adopted by the Democrats at the last State Convention in 1904.

The success of the Democratic party should be paramount to the success of any individual, and the governing authorities of the Democratic party should act for the benefit of a few Democrats.

The outlook for Democratic victory in the next national election is brighter than it has been in years, and becoming more favorable every day. Kentucky Democrats must give no aid to "rule or ruin" policies, but uphold wise and just policies that will keep Kentucky in the Democratic majority.

I have perfect confidence in the Democrats of Kentucky, and I willingly and gladly submit to their judgment and their action my aspiration for a second term in the United States Senate.

I have always been a faithful, loyal Democrat, and I have always when in office given all of my time to the faithful discharge of my duties, and when our State had been Republican several years, and I was requested by the Democratic authorities to take charge of the campaign in 1900, I managed the campaign, visited many counties in the State, and organized and made many speeches, and with the aid of my brother Democrats we redeemed the State from Republican rule and gave a majority to our candidate for Governor and our candidate for President.

Precedents are not lacking in Kentucky for giving to her Senators, whose services have proven satisfactory, second and even third terms, and as Democrats have not objected to or criticized my record I am asking an endorsement.

Legislation on important questions and the great issues now before our country concern the welfare of the people more than ever before, and I trust my experience and my investigation make me better equipped for faithful and efficient discharge of my duties if I am re-elected.

The Democratic majority in Kentucky is small when both political parties vote their full strength. Our majorities in recent years, as compared with those twenty-five years ago, admonish us of the necessity of earnest and united party action. Every Democrat who participates in the primary election should endeavor to strengthen our party and improve its prospects for victory at the regular election by conducting the campaign on a high and honorable plane, and by seeing that every candidate has justice and fair play, and that an honest primary is held and every vote counted as cast.

Respectfully,

JAMES B. MCCREARY.

STOCK, CROP, &c.

—John Brophy sold to the Paris Milling Company 1,200 bushels of wheat at 78 cents.

—John Roseberry sold yesterday to Joe Frakes 57 head of 1,450 pound cattle for 5½ cents.

—Sam Turley, of Montgomery, sold 600 bushels of bluegrass seed, uncleaned, for 75 cents per bushel.

—The first load of this year's crop of timothy hay was delivered last week in Lexington, and the best quality sold at $12.50 a ton.

—C. Lebus, of Cynthiana, refused six and a fourth cents for 225 hogs, weight about 225 pounds. He sold 252 lambs to Carroll & Talbot at 7 cents.

—H. Clay Turner and Clay W. Womack, of Mt. Sterling, have sold to Carruthers & Board, of Lexington, twenty-seven mules for $160 per head. The mules were all high-class ones.

—R. H. Biddle threshed from a 25 acre field, on Jasper Offutt's farm, near Glen Kenney, 410 sacks of wheat that yielded two bushels and one peck to the stack, an average of nearly 37 bushels per acre.

—Simon Weil, of Lexington, bought of E. B. Sparks thirty-eight head of 1,400 pound cattle for export at 5 cents per pound. G. C. Thompson sold to Jonas Weil, of Lexington, twenty-five 1,400 pound gross fed cattle at $4.85 per hundred.

—Robert C. Gatewood, of Mt. Sterling, sold Wednesday to C. C. McDonald, for S. & S., 50 export cattle, average 1,500 pounds, for 5½ cents. There are other Montgomery county cattle dealers holding their cattle for 6 cents.

—Dogs have been killing many sheep in the southern end of Montgomery county. Twenty-five good ewes were killed in one night in the Camargo neighborhood by the worthless curs, and farmers are watching their flocks with shotguns.

Highest Market Price Paid.

We will pay you the highest market price for your wheat. You will save time by selling to us, as we unload 2,000 bushels per hour.

A Brilliant Social Event.

The beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McClintock, on Duncan avenue, was thrown open last evening to their many friends, the occasion being in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James D. McClintock, Miss Martha Fleming Wyatt and Miss Sue Todd, of Indianapolis. The home of this popular couple seems to be especially adapted for an occasion of this kind. The whole lower floor looking as if it was one room, beautifully and tastefully decorated with white and green flowers, the handsome and elegantly attired guests, numbering about 300, with sweet strains of music from Foote's mandolin club, made it an enchanting and brilliant occasion, a social event long to be remembered by all who had the pleasure to be present.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McClintock, Mr. and Mrs. James D. McClintock, Miss Wyatt and Miss Todd, Mrs. Lou Palmer, Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Morgan, Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Malone, Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Sweetney, Mrs. Albert Mitchell, Mrs. D. C. Parrish, Dr. Silas Evans and Mr. Edw. Bedford.

The color scheme of green and white was in evidence throughout the house. The dining room was artistically decorated with these colors and with the elegant cut glass dishes was indeed a beautiful room, and where delicious refreshments were served. This room was in charge of Mrs. W. T. Brooks and Mrs. William Giltner, assisted by Misses May Belle and Louise Wyatt, Ethel Talbot, Helen Hutchcraft, Catherine Thompson and Ruth Morgan.

The frappe table was presided over by Mrs. Robert L. Frank, assisted by Misses Elizabeth Embry, of Richmond, Josephine Hayden, Nellie Long, Frances Butler, Iva Collins and Edna Earl Hinton.

The out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Marshall and Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Roberts, of Lexington; Mrs. Frazier and Miss Margaret Frazier, of Louisville; Miss Bessie Rogers, of Newtown; Mrs. Meirs and Mrs. Lieber, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Geisler, of Little Rock, Ark.; Mrs. Eberhardt, of Liberty, Mo.

AS WE USE OUR HANDS

THE PREFERENCE FOR THE RIGHT AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE.

In Primitive Times It Is Probable That Both Hands Were Equally Used—What the Hieroglyphics of the Egyptians Teach Us.

The fact that some persons are left handed may start the question whether the human animal was always right handed, for abnormality often indicates a "trying back" to an ancestral condition. Now, when we look at our language, and that in the case of man is a fair test, we find how strongly the comparative force exhibited by each of the hands has left its mark on our common expressions. The right is the "ruling" hand; the left is the "worthless" or the "weaker" hand if we regard the derivative meanings of the names. In words imported from the Latin a certain ability is called "dexterity," or right handedness, while that which has an evil or unsuccessful influence becomes "sinister" or left handed. In like manner if we look at words from a French source we find that a clever person is "adroit" because he has right handed qualities, but a clumsy person is "gauche" because his work is left handed.

It is evident that when our race became so far advanced as to frame words for ideas and things the rule was that the members of it were right handed. And if we examine other languages we find proofs that such a rule existed among the people using them. There is, however, good reason for thinking that man originally could use either hand equally well.

"This seems a hazardous statement to make about a remote ancestor in the age before the great glacial epoch had furrowed the mountains of northern Europe, but nevertheless it is strictly true and strictly demonstrable. Just try as you read to draw with the forefinger and thumb of your right hand an imaginary human profile on the page on which these words are printed. Do you observe that (unless you are an artist and therefore sophisticated) you naturally and instinctively draw it with the face turned toward your left shoulder? Try now to draw it with the profile to the right and you will find it requires a far greater effort of the thumb and forefinger.

"The hand moves of its own accord from without inward, not from within outward. Then again draw with your left thumb and forefinger another imaginary profile and you will find, for the same reason, that the face in this case looks rightward. Existing savages and our own young children whenever they draw a figure in profile, be it of man or beast, with their right hand, draw it almost always with the face or head turned to the left, in accordance with this natural instinct. Their doing so is a test of their perfect right handedness.

"But primitive man, or, at any rate, the most primitive men we know personally, the carvers of the figures from the French bone caves, drew men and beasts on bone or mammoth tusk turned either way indiscriminately. The inference is obvious. They must have been ambidextrous. Only ambidextrous people draw so at the present day, and, indeed, to scrape a figure otherwise with a sharp flint on a piece of bone or tooth or mammoth tusk would, even for a practiced hand, be comparatively difficult" (Allen).

In connection with this passage it is interesting to examine the reports of the bureau of ethnology, where it will be seen that, although the majority of profiles executed by the North American Indians follow the rule, many faces also turn to the right, and it is found that left handedness, or, rather, ambidexterity, is very common among these tribes.

But doubtless the reader will notice that in writing his hand moves from left to right and not from right to left. Here is an apparent violation of the principle laid down in the quotation given from Grant Allen. It is, however, more apparent than real. If you study Egyptian hieroglyphics you will find that profiles invariably look to the left. Hebrew, Arabic, Hindoostanee and other ancient languages read from right to left. In these, as in some modern tongues, we have to begin the book at what is to us the wrong end. The reason of this is that the early languages were inscribed, not written. A tablet of marble or a brick formed the page. The right hand could therefore carve or impress the symbol in the natural way and pass on. With the introduction of wax tablets of papyrus and in later times of parchment and paper, a difficulty arose, for if the hand began at the right and worked leftward it would obliterate its own work.

Hence the habit of writing from left to right, so that not only may the writing be clean, but also that it may be visible. With writing from left to right came also reading in the same direction, and one result of this is very curious. We have become so accustomed to moving the eyes from left to right that we instinctively look at things in that way. Close your eyes in a room and then open them. You will find, unless you make a positive effort, that your eyes take in the objects on the left hand first and then move to the right. This is the way in which we view a landscape or a picture. The painter follows the habit of the writer and works from left to right to avoid "smudging" his work, and it has been remarked that when several compositions enter into one picture, as in some of the ancient altar pieces, the chronological order runs from the upper left hand corner to the lower right hand one.

Strength of the Open Sky.
"What great deed was ever done indoors?" writes Emerson Hough in the Reader. "What great thing of the earth in art, in science, in romance, was ever conceived and brought forth within walls? Pathos grows there, and small tragedy and bitterness and pessimism, but not great tragedy, nor the vast and useful pessimism which uplifts human nature and humanity."

"The joyous, hopeful, optimistic things, the large and cheerful motives, are found beneath the sky. The Indians say that the babe born in the wind will be chief, and that might well be so. What strong blood ever grew indoors? What great drama of the ages was ever played there? What duel on the stair ever equaled the battle under the trees?"

"Science may delve, lamp-wise, but what great things, even of science, came wholly from within walls? Electricity, navigation by the stars—the things which have really conquered the world—did these appear to man as he studied at some table side? No. The great and sweet things of knowledge came from the naked stars. Guilty and troublous wisdom may have housing, concealment, and so make a confession that it is evil, but before guilty Eden knowledge was out of doors."

The Guillotine.
The machine employed in French public executions has the reputation of being the invention of Dr. Guillotin, but the machine was used long before the doctor had seen one. All he did was to publicly encourage a preference for this means of death as being painless, and in consequence some one, unhappily for the doctor's humanity, named the machine after him. The guillotine was really prepared by a German mechanic named Schmidt under the direction of Dr. Antoine Louis and hence at first was called a "louisson" or "louisette."

And here it may not be out of place to mention the cognate error that Guillotin was its first victim. He nearly became a victim of the revolution, but he escaped, and after the ending of his political career he resumed his duties as a physician and became one of the founders of the Academy of Medicine in Paris. He died May 26, 1814, aged seventy-six, but the French revolution died twenty years earlier. The first man executed by the guillotine was a highwayman, who died in 1792.

The Wrists.
In spite of the fact that doctors always take the pulse of a patient from the wrist few persons know what important parts of the body the wrists are and how much may be accomplished by treatment of them. When one has fainted water should be applied to the wrists as freely as to the face and temples. In cases of severe illness doctors frequently order the wrists to be bathed with milk and with beef tea. Athletes learn that the wrists must be kept cool in summer and warm in winter. You all know the relief experienced from removing a tight glove, especially when you are overheated. The relief comes not from the hands being uncovered, but from the wrists being unconfined and kept cool.

Incomes in Great Britain.
If one is earning an income of £1,000 a year he is among the financial "upper ten thousand" in the United Kingdom—in fact, there are not 9,000 (according to the income tax records) who are as well or better off than £1,000 a year. All the persons in Great Britain and Ireland who have an income of £10,000 a year and over could stand comfortably in a fairly large drawing room twenty-one feet square, while all who have incomes of £1,000 or over could be accommodated in a back garden thirty yards wide and sixty yards in length.—London Standard.

Atmospheric and Water Pressure.
The earth's surface is the plane of demarcation for atmospheric and water pressure. The barometer indicates increased pressure as we go down in mines and decreased pressure in ascending in the air. Water also increases in pressure as directly as the distance beneath the surface of the sea. The atmosphere has no known difference in composition at the greatest heights observed. It is its lightness or rarity that affects the lungs at great heights.

The Usual Way.
"What's the cause of the coolness between the Bilkins and the Pilkins families?"
"Young Bilkins became engaged to one of the Pilkins girls."
"Yes."
"And now each family thinks its offspring is getting all the worst of it."

JAMES QUIN.

Reign of the Great Irish Actor in the Eighteenth Century.

The son of an Irish barrister, himself intended for the bar, lack of means and consciousness of ability sent Quin on to the stage. He made his first success in 1720, when he persuaded Christopher Rich to allow him to appear as Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor." After Booth's death he advanced still further in public esteem by what he modestly described on the playbill as "his attempt" to follow that tragedian in his greatest part of Cato. He so delighted the audience by his attempt that after his delivery of the line "Thanks to the gods, my boy has done his duty!" they cried: "Booth outdone! Booth outdone!" And after he had spoken the then famous soliloquy on the immortality of the soul the enthusiasm reached such a pitch that in answer to a vociferous demand for an encore Quin was obliged to repeat the speech.

From this night Quin as an actor reigned supreme for ten years. It was a solemn reign, dignified, weighty, traditional. He was unsurpassed in such characters as Falstaff and Sir John Brute, but in tragedy he did no more than uphold with fine elocution, ponderous majesty and rugged independence that solemn unreality of speech and action which both in England and France was then considered the appropriate expression of tragic sentiment. As in France Le Kain was the first to restore nature to tragic acting, so did Garrick in England by a similar return to nature expose the dullness, the lifelessness of the settled methods of the actors of the type of Quin. And Quin had too much good sense not to see it himself, for as a man he was the rather coarse embodiment of that rough but ready witted, prejudiced but generous and warm hearted disposition, which we admire and respect in Dr. Johnson.

The few of Quin's sayings preserved to us almost make one regret that he had no Boswell by his side. Lords and bishops, clergy and gentry, all were represented in the circles of Quin's many friends, who delighted in his wit and conversation. He could hold his own in an argument with any man. One instance must suffice. At some gathering Bishop Warburton, dictatorial and overbearing, was arguing in support of royal prerogative. Q. in said he was a republican and thought that perhaps even the execution of Charles I. by his subjects might be justified. "Aye," asked the indignant Warburton, "by what law?" "By all the laws he had left them," answered Quin. The shocked bishop then cited the wrath of the divine judgment as visited upon the regicides; they all, he said (though it is not strictly true), had come to violent ends. "I would not advise your lordship," said Quin, "to make use of that inference, for if I am not mistaken that was the case with the twelve apostles." Horace Walpole greatly admired this instance of the player's readiness and aptness of retort.—H. B. Irving in Fortnightly Review.

Collecting Old China.

Old china ornaments, such as are often to be purchased from country people, are very salable. Particularly those funny old jugs known to collectors as "Toby jugs" are in demand. The buyer should make sure that he is purchasing the genuine old articles, as there are many forgeries about. The old jugs have been copied so exactly in design and markings that it is extremely difficult even for experts to tell the real thing. If the jug looks very old and the owner can give it a history extending some time back, the purchaser will be fairly safe in laying out anything under $3. In out of the way places jugs and plates are still to be found made in one time fashionable "lustre" ware. Of late years these have been in demand among collectors, and the amateur will easily recognize them from the metallic appearance of the surface. In conclusion, it may be said that the general rule of the treasure hunter must be not to pay any big prices at all. At the best the buying of such articles as mentioned above is very speculative in that the purchaser may be able to realize a good price, or, on the other hand, he may not do more than cover his expenses, so that the conscience of the amateur purchaser may be quite easy in buying at a low price, and if he can sell at a large profit he deserves all he gets for the risk he is willing to run.—New York Mail.

Diving For a wife.

In many of the Greek islands diving for sponges forms a considerable part of the occupation of the inhabitants. The natives make it a trade to gather these, and their income from this source is far from contemptible. In one of the islands a girl is not permitted to marry until she has brought up a certain number of sponges and given proof of her skill by taking them from a certain depth. But in some of the islands this custom is reversed. The father of a marriageable daughter bestows her on the best diver among her suitors. He who can stay longest in the water and bring up the biggest cargo of sponges marries the maid.

State Flags.

Most of our states have flags, some of them very peculiar ones. These are carried as the state colors of the militia regiments. Our own is too familiar to need description. "The white standard of Massachusetts" has been seen in the forefront of many battles. New York displays a buff flag, and the state banner of Maryland bears on a ground of blazing yellow the arms and motto of the Calverts. The heraldic design is so disposed as to give Maryland's flag, seen at a distance, somewhat the semblance of a gorgeous crazy quilt, although we suppose to the Marylanders it is more suggestive of the picturesqueness of a royal standard.—Boston Transcript.

So Far Off.

"My sympathies," says a writer in the Boston Transcript, "were always with an old lady who lived way down in the Maine woods. One day a sportsman came to the door of her little cabin to ask for a glass of milk. As he drank the refreshing beverage they exchanged confidences. When in response to her inquiry he told her that he came from New York city she commiserated with him, saying, 'Laws, sir, it must be hard for you living so far off!'"

A Joyous Sight.

The master plumber had become rich and was going abroad for his health. On the voyage a school of whales was sighted, and the plumber was seen to rub his hands in ecstasies.

"Why is he so happy?" asked a curious passenger.

"He can't help it," whispered the captain. "He imagines each spout is a burst water pipe to be repaired by him at his old rates."—London Telegraph.

Squeezed Again.

"Mrs. Peck, I have stood your bullying just as long as I propose to do so. I shall proceed to give you a piece of my mind."

"A piece of your mind, Henry Peck? A piece of your mind! Talk about 'two bites of a cherry!'"—Chicago News.

The Eclipse of Art.

Playwright (to friend)—I'm going to the theater tonight. Friend—I thought you never went to see the first night's performance of your plays. Playwright—I'm not going to see the play. I am going to see how many people are there.

His Tender Way.

"Shall I sing 'Because I Love You?'" asked Mrs. Darley as she seated herself at the piano.
"No," replied Mr. Darley, who is a brute; "if you love me, don't sing."

A Mild Epithet.

In Sweden they call a plumber "ratensledingsentreprenor." In this country we have heard plumbers called worse names than that.—Toledo Blade.

An Ancient Dog Story.

A delightful dog story has been exhumed from the misty past and is now preserved in the records of an old court at Southampton, England. It dates from 1587 and must be told in the quaint terminology of the period: "Item we present yt at the tyme of our sytting ther hath ben complaynt made of another dogge, betwene a masty & a mungrell, of Peter Quoyle's which hath strong qualtyties by himselfe, which goyng lose abroad doth many times offend the neighbors & wyll fetch out of their howses whole peeces of meate, as loynes of mutton & veal & such lyke & a pasty of venison or a whole pownde of candells at a tyme, & wyll not spoyle yt by the way but carry yt whole to his masters howse, which being a profytable dogg for his master, yt because he is offensyffe to many yt is not sufferable, wherfor his master hath forfeyt for every tyme 3 shillings 4 pence [83 cents]. And be yt comanded to kepe him tyed or to putt him away upon payn to forfeyte for every tyme he shal be found in the streets 3 shillings 4 pence."

Brown Leather Bags.

The salesman brought out a superb old bag of cowhide, a rich brown bag, and sewed, as big as a trunk.

"This," he said, "is $40."
"I'd take it," said the patron, "only brown leather luggage gets so dirty and shabby after a few months' use. I have a leather steamer trunk I paid $75 for, and it is scratched and stained and discolored so I am ashamed of it."

The salesman frowned.

"Haven't you sense enough," he said, "to clean your brown leather luggage with a tan dressing, the same as you clean your brown leather shoes? As brown shoes, uncleared, become uncleanly, so brown luggage does, but this luggage, cleaned whenever it is used, is the most imposing and the most beautiful you can have."

"Get a bottle of brown leather dressing, apply it to your brown trunk and rub with a woolen cloth for five minutes. I'll guarantee that the trunk will then look better than new. It will have a richer, deeper color."

"Suit cases, valises and all sorts of brown leather things should be rubbed up each time they are used. Then, instead of shabby luggage, we would see everywhere spick and span luggage of the richest brown."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Not a Cloud Mars Their Happiness

Isaiah F. Harding and Mrs. Isabella Engelbrecht, of Dallas county, Iowa, had not found smooth sailing upon the sea of matrimony, although both are, comparatively speaking, rich. Twice each had married and twice divorced. When, therefore, seeking a consolation prize Harding asked Mrs. Engelbrecht to be his, extreme caution attended her affirmative response. "We'd better lay down some rules to go by," she said, and Harding agreed.

The result was the most remarkable nuptial contract ever drawn in Iowa and perhaps in the world. Veteran lawyers say they have never seen anything quite like it.

It arranges for almost every possible contingency that may arise in the wedded life of two people. The contract plainly set forth who shall build the fires, when the husband may bring home guests to meals, when the relatives of each shall visit them, how the money is to be divided, how often the wife may attend social functions without being scowled at and even fixes a limit to the number of possible future Hardings.

By observing in minutest detail the terms of this document Harding and his third wife have already enjoyed two months of life together without a cloud appearing in their matrimonial sky.

GUIMARD, THE SPIDER.

The Great Dancer of the Great Days of the Ballet.

The elder Vestris, who flourished in the middle of the eighteenth century, called himself the "god of dancing" and declared in all sincerity and without rebuke that his century had produced but three supreme men—himself, Frederick the Great and Voltaire. On one occasion when reproving his son Augustus for refusing to dance before the king of Sweden at the request of the king of France he said that he would not tolerate any misunderstanding between the houses of Vestris and Bourbon, which had lived hitherto upon the most friendly terms.

Madeleine Guimard made her debut when she was thirteen years of age and for nearly thirty years kept all Paris worshipping at her feet. This was a success of art and not of beauty, for Guimard was so aggressively thin that she was known as "the spider." She discovered the great painter David, who helped Fragonard to adorn her house with frescoes. Indeed, Fragonard, for whose paintings today fabulous sums have been paid, lost his commission because he dared to fall in love with his patron. Guimard had a theater in her own house, and her entertainments there were deemed extravagant in an age of luxury. Paris could not spare her to London until she was past her fortieth year. She was a sort of boudoir adviser to Marie Antoinette, and so great was the esteem in which she was held that one of the most distinguished sculptors of the day molded her foot, and when her arm was broken in a stage accident a mass for her speedy recovery was celebrated at Notre Dame. —Macmillan's Magazine.

THE BLACK BASS.

A Marine Butcher That Kills For the Pleasure of Slaughtering.

The bass is like a roaring lion going about seeking whom he may devour. I have seen a good sized specimen get into a school of minnows and eat and stuff until he could not get any more into his capacious insides, then go off by himself, throw up what he had eaten and begin over again, after which he would keep on killing the poor innocent minnows, apparently for the mere pleasure of killing. Very young bass will attack minute water life which flourishes on water plants and get away with every one in sight, adopting the same method as their elders. To illustrate the extent of the cannibalism of the black bass here is the experience of a superintendent of one of the fish hatcheries in Pennsylvania:

"The superintendent made an actual count of 20,000 young bass about an inch long and placed them in a fry pond by themselves. He gave them food six times a day, and, according to his statement, each fish ate on an average three times its own weight of the prepared food every twenty-four hours. They were placed in a pond on the 1st of July, and on Oct. 1, when they were taken out, there were only 11,000, and the record showed that less than 200 died from sickness. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that in addition to the food given them by the superintendent there were about 9,000 bass devoured by their stronger and more fortunate companions." —W. E. Meehan in Field and Stream.

Caring For the Teeth.

Without good teeth there cannot be thorough mastication. Without thorough mastication there cannot be perfect digestion, and consequently poor health results; hence the paramount importance of sound teeth. Clean teeth do not decay. The teeth should not be brushed from side to side. If this is done the points of the gums will be injured and the teeth loosened. The upper teeth should be brushed from the top downward (from the gums to the ends of the teeth), the lower teeth from the bottom upward, also from the gums to the extremity of the teeth. It is essential to wash the teeth at night and wise to wash them also in the morning. Rinse the mouth after each meal.

Swiss Enterprise.

There is a weekly journal published at Zurich, Switzerland, called the Engaged Couples' Advertiser, which has agents at work all over Switzerland ascertaining the name of every girl who is engaged to be married and that of her prospective husband. These names are printed in the paper, with the addresses of the sweethearts and a description of their social position. Soon after the announcement of her engagement a girl finds herself almost in a position to start a shop, so numerous are the samples she receives from firms anxious to sell their goods to her.

Gun Barrels.

To brown gun barrels wet a piece of rag with chloride of antimony, dip it into olive oil and rub the barrel over. In forty-eight hours it will be covered with a fine coat of rust. Then rub the barrel with a fine steel scratch brush and wipe with a rag dipped in boiled linseed oil. To rebrown remove the old coating with oil and emery paper, then remove the grease with caustic potash.

Sitting on Chairs.

Does sitting on chairs tend to make people stiff and awkward? Orientals can sit on their heels however fat and elderly they may be, while many English people after middle age can rarely rise from their chairs without assistance. —London Graphic.

Nose For News.

"That man is an inveterate gossip, and he has a perfect genius for smelling out squally times in families." "Then his is something of a storm seener." —Baltimore American.

It is easy to be brave when you know the enemy has only blank cartridges.

The Speculator's Progress.

Graball—So you sent your boy around the globe for a little trip, eh? I heard he was dabbling some in stocks? Ritchie—Dabbling? He probably was—at first, but when I discovered his predicament he was floundering in them! —Puck.

A Man of Ability.

Tomson—Johnson has no ability of any kind. Jackson—No ability? Nonsense. Why, he can ask you for a loan in such a way that you thank your lucky stars for the opportunity to accommodate him. —London Tit-Bits.

Used to It.

Mrs. Knieker—Weren't you frightened when the bull bellowed at you on account of your new dress? Mrs. Becker—No. It was exactly the way Henry behaved when he got the bill.

Love's Young Dream.

She was waiting for him at the door when he returned home from business, and he clasped her in his arms. The honeymoon was over, and they had been just three weeks in their new flat. Her delicious dinners had not yet proved all that he had hoped for, but he was good natured about it because their servant was little more than a girl. The bride was looking after the cooking herself.

"Oh, Dick," she said as she took his hat, coat and bundle of newspapers, "I've had such a delightful day! Florence has been here, and she was delighted with our cozy corner, as she called it. Then we went out shopping together, and I've the loveliest—"

"Yes, yes, dear," he said, "but you can tell me all about it at dinner. I'm a little hungrier than usual tonight, and—why, what's the matter?"

"Dick," she tremblingly said, "I've—"

"There, never mind, dear, if you have spent a little more money than you should have done. We'll make it up somehow."

"But, Dick, I've let the girl out for the evening, and—"

"Oh, never mind the girl. We'll wait on ourselves, and I'll help you to wash the dishes. There now."

"But, Dick, dear, I've been so busy I've forgotten the dinner." —London Tit-Bits.

The Nazareth of Today.

Nazareth, where Jesus spent his boyhood, calls to mind a picture of a hazy, half mystical village of the far east. The Palestine of today is a network of railroads and telegraph wires. Modern hotels with elevators and bell boys now occupy sacred places of history. Cafes stand where once the hosts of Israel fought, contending with chariots and horsemen. The awkward camel back is transplanted by the compartment car. One would look in vain for the hospitable villager standing at the door of his humble flat roofed home. Tall, slanting roofed buildings predominate, with fresh red tiles imported from France. In a prominent place on the brow of a hill stands the English orphanage, which provides for the education of the orphans of Palestine. English and Arabic are taught here as well as housekeeping and needlework. A telegraph station, with an Armenian operator in citizen's dress, keeps Nazareth in touch with the world.

Quieted the Barber.

A distinguished senator from the northwest strolled into the barber shop in the senate wing one day for a shave. The chairs were all occupied. The statesman, seeing this, started to go out, with the idea of returning a little later, but the head barber of the senatorial parlor sought to detain the senator. He called after him in a rather strident tone:

"You're the next, senator!"

The northwestern senator wheeled around, assuming a sad smile, placed a hand over his fast pulsating heart as though the throbbing there pained him and said to the head barber:

"Be good enough not to remind me of that any oftener than you can help. I understand fully that I am tabbed, but permit me to enjoy what peace I may until the blow falls."

And the occupants of the chairs chuckled under their soapy masks. —American Spectator.

A Trite Saying.

It is a trite saying that no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body and thus cures both liver and kidney troubles. If you take this natural blood purifier and tonic, you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a pint of rich, red blood, that is invigorating to the brain and nerves. The weak nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people suffer from, is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin and the feelings "blue." Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" cures all blood humors as well as being a tonic that makes one vigorous, strong and forceful. It is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that contains neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs, and the only one, every ingredient of which has the professional endorsement of the leading medical writers of this country. Some of these endorsements are published in a little book of extracts from standard medical works and will be sent to any address free, on receipt of request therefor by letter or postal card, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. It tells just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of. The "Words of Praise" for the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, by leaders in all the several schools of medical practice, and recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised, should have far more weight with the sick and afflicted than any amount of the so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public by those who are afraid to let the ingredients of which their medicines are composed be known. Bear in mind that the "Golden Medical Discovery" has the badge of honesty on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of its ingredients.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, invigorate the liver and regulate stomach and bowels.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, caused by Catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHEEY & CO. Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.
